Art Unit: 3712

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Halamay 5,261,383 in view of Johnson 5,117,803.

Halamay shows an arrow rest including first, second, and third guide rollers 44, 46, 30; upper arm 26 and lower arm 28, having channels to allow passage of the arrow fletching; roller support shafts 34, 36 slidably mounted in the respective arms; and a burger button arrangement 24, 27A for supporting the third roller 30. The arrow rest of Halamay is mounted by means of a mounting block 10, and is adjustable left to right by loosening bolts 20 and sliding the rest body 12 relative to the mounting block. However, the bolts sliding in slots 21 may allow undesired up and down movement. Johnson shows that an arrow rest may be adjusted left to right by means of a mounting portion 35 having an integral block portion having a dovetail means 44, engageable with complementary dovetail means 54 on the rest body; an adjustment screw is used to move the rest portion by means of a threaded section on one of the dovetail means.

Art Unit: 3712

This would be a more precise adjustment means than the means shown by Halamay. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to mount the arrow rest of Halamay using the dovetail arrangement shown by Johnson.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
